Temp Time Entry is very time consuming for my staff. What better ways are available?

There are certainly better options that can also be used as marketing tools for your company.

Web time entry is quickly becoming the preferred method for both applicants and clients. Applicants can key in their time easily and quickly and clients can authorize time in the same respect. The big advantage for you is that your staff does not have to enter it.

Another option that is quite popular is the ability of the client to collect the time, and then send you a spreadsheet that you import into your software. This method is somewhat popular in the light industrial staffing sector.

Your company can steam ahead of the competition by offering such unique products that enhance the time process.
