

Automated ASK ABD: Business Designs

Is it possible to integrate social networking sites with my software?

Absolutely. One simple way is to link to a social networking site by clicking on a social networking field on your software screen. This will take you directly to the social networking site for research on a particular client or candidate.

Another popular integration method is to post your job orders to your social networking site. You can also include a link to your website for the convenience of the candidate.

Social networking can play an important role in today's staffing and recruiting industry. If your software does not already have these features, speak to your software vendor about adding them. The more integration you have, the better you can stay connected with clients and candidates.
